

What Your Leaders Need Most Right Now

Virtual Learning Journeys to Lead in Challenging Times

This is the moment you need your leaders most.

But now is also the time to make sure your leaders have the support they need.

In times of crisis and disruption, strong leaders are needed for business continuity, yet they are also faced with their own challenges:

How can I keep my people engaged?

How do I lead in a new virtual environment?

How do I stay strong under pressure?

With DDI by your side, we can help you deliver the high-quality development your leaders need most now, all in a virtual setting.

Develop the Skills Your Leaders Need—Virtually

We've built powerful virtual learning journeys designed for the specific skills your leaders will need to adapt and lead through tough times. These learning journeys are designed to help your leaders:

- Lead through change and disruption
- Maintain morale and engagement
- Lead in a virtual environment
- Stay strong under stress and pressure
- Continue to coach and support others
- Have meaningful conversations
- Excel as a first-time manager

With DDI's learning journeys, you can BUILD skills with virtual classroom sessions or web-based courses, BOOST learning with hyper-relevant microcourses, and SUSTAIN growth with on-demand tools.

Excel as a First-Time Leader

How are your new or emerging leaders dealing with all this? Making the transition from individual contributor to leader is challenging as it is—and you don't want to let first-time leaders sink or swim through a crisis. This program will help those new to leadership or those interested in a step up to leadership address four key areas: the transition to leadership and behaviors for success, becoming an effective communicator, developing accurate self-insight, and learning effective delegation skills to empower those around you. They will also learn to strengthen their business network and look at designing short team meetings focused on a key goal.
